

Code Breaking

Hello, my name's Keith Rae. In 1940 I managed to escape capture by enemy soldiers and spent three months on the run in occupied France. I had many adventures along the way including swimming across a river under the cover of darkness, creeping through rows of tents full of snoring Germans and even disguising myself as a peasant so that I would not be spotted by enemy soldiers.

How would you dress if you were on the run in France during World War 2? Try on some of my clothes to choose the best disguise.

I wanted to get messages home but it was very important that I wasn't found out! Can you use semaphore and Morse code to send short messages to your classmates? Which do you think would have been the most useful code during World War 2?

Why?
